Garden Contest Winners

Noble Given First Place, Devon Second and North Avenue Third—Hard Task for Judges

Something over forty years ago the Editor of SURFACE SERVICE, then a reporter on The Tribune was induced to become one of three judges at a colored cake-walk affair. The contest was held on the third floor of the old Pacific Hall at the southwest corner of Clark and Van Buren streets. After a score of dusky contesting couples had strutted their stuff, the judges went into secret session and returned their verdict. Unfortunately the platform upon which they discharged their judicial functions was at the north end of the hall and the exit doors were at the south end. Thus, when the friends of the losing couples heard the verdict and there was a concerted and menacing move toward the platform, the judges with commendable unanimity and considerable haste went out of a window and fled to safety down a convenient fire escape.

Some years later the Editor was forced to referee a prize baby contest at a Hibernian picnic, and if what the mothers of the babies who did not win said about the unfortunate judge was true, he then and there forfeited all claim to respectability, intelligence and the right to continued existence, except in a superheated and remote region of the hereafter. A rescue squad of policemen escorted him to safety outside the grounds, but his ears still burn when he recalls the blistering denunciatory and voluble remarks of two score of wildly disappointed contestants.

Sometimes we fail to learn from experience, and thus it happens that the Editor found himself one of the three judges in the Garden Contest, Messrs. Hamilton and Excell being his associates. These two gentlemen are sharps at the floral and gardening game. They know all the varieties by their common names and their scientific appellations as well. And it was an education to the third member of the trio to listen to their grave discussion of the condition of the salpiglossis in the three gardens where this beautiful and somewhat sensitive plant had been brought to maturity and glorious blossom. It was left to them to grade the varying excellence of the various members of the asteraceous group—coreopsis, dahlia, aster and so on; the non-technical member interesting himself in the general layout of the gardens, the character of the ground that had been dedicated to the purposes of the contest, the difficulties that had been overcome, and the enthusiasm of those who had assumed the responsibility for the cultivation of the flowers.

Motorman Charles Wagner of North Avenue and Family in Their Attractive Garden. The Trellis and Boxes Are His Own Handiwork

All of these features were given thoughtful consideration by the technical judges also, and when it got down to making a choice for positions in the contest the three leading stations were so close in their accomplishments, each having excelled in some particular feature, that assignment to first, second and third places seemed impossible at the same time giving each full credit for the season's work. The judges undoubtedly would have been glad to make it a draw as between the three leaders, but a verdict had to be returned and on the final ballot as to positions, the unanimous conclusion was:

First—Noble, Foreman Ernest Phillips furnishing the technical skill and leading the enthusiasm of the station.

Second—Devon, Foreman P. Radtke directing the layout and cultivation of the scores of varieties displayed so effectively.

Third—North Avenue, Foreman Jack Gillen, a veteran gardening enthusiast, making the most effective use of the extensive garden and parking spaces.

Honorable mention goes to Burnside for its reclamation of the concrete and cinder strewn waste space south of the station; to Blue Island for its beds and window boxes, which showed a great deal of care and won the approval of the surrounding residents; to Armitage for the reclamation and beautifying of some unattractive waste spaces and for its window boxes; to Tom Blakely for the attractive display he was able to make amid the most unpromising surroundings of sand, crushed stone and miscellaneous supplies at the Thirtieth and Halsted Yard; to Archer, Kedzie, Division, Elston, Lincoln, and the Limits for their carefully-built and decorative window boxes; and to Seventy-seventh for a park lawn developed under great difficulties.

Unfortunately the Fourth Division appears to have missed all the early references to a garden contest and therefore had nothing to show in boxes or lawn. However, they expect to be in it next season.

The Track Department is to be congratulated upon the great improvement in the appearance of numerous of our outlying loop properties, where the wastes of steel and wood and cinders have been transformed by the effective introduction of lawns, flower beds and crushed stone paths.

There has been a most favorable public reaction to the efforts that have been made to beautify or at least relieve the forbidding appearance of our car stations which have little to commend them as architecturally decorative features of a locality; and if, a little later on, it is found possible to substitute an open cyclone fence for the tight board structure that now conceals the beauties of the Noble gardens, with a similar substitution at Kedzie, where the vacant space to the north of the open storage tracks might be made a delight to the eyes of boulevard passers-by, and at Division, where the east vacant could be made a wonderful garden, we could materially increase public interest in our stations, and incidentally let them know that we have a real spirit of civic pride and are willing to do our share to make our neighborhoods more attractive.

Our photographer has made a number of studies of the garden displays and it is unfortunate that no picture in black and white can do justice to the riot of color that blazes in every one of the Surface Lines gardens.

Allusion has been made to some earlier experiences of the Editor as a judge in competitions. This time he has not been able to get away, the fire escape is on the far side of the building, and there is only Bill Pasche in the adjoining room to afford protection. And it may or may not be significant that Messrs Hamilton and Excell packed their bags and left for parts unknown just as this issue of SURFACE SERVICE went to press.

MR. PAYNE PROMOTED

Is Made Superintendent of the Department of Accident Prevention

Mr. Frederick C. Payne, who has just been appointed Superintendent of the Department of Accident Investigation, was born in Chicago, Illinois, February 15, 1887. Graduating from the Illinois College of Law in 1910, he became associated with his father in the practice of law under the firm name of Payne & Payne, and in 1911 he entered the employ of the Chicago Railways Company in the Claims Department, beginning as a statement man, and shortly thereafter was given the position of claims attorney in that department.

Mr. Payne was in the military service during the World War, serving eighteen months. The greater portion of that time he was regimental adjutant for the 69th Infantry, 10th Division. He was discharged from the army in 1919, and then was married to Miss Helen Cribben of Oak Park, Illinois. They now reside in Glen Ellyn and have three children.

After he was mustered out of service in 1919 he was appointed Claims Attorney in the Claims Department of the Chicago Surface Lines, which position he retained until the death of Mr. Frank J. Gatrell in December, 1927, when he was appointed Acting Superintendent of the Department of Accident Investigation, in which position he remained until his present appointment as Superintendent of that department.

By WILLIAM PASCHE
Supervisor, Accident Prevention

The seventh month of the Contest ends with Lawndale and Blue Island, Division No. 6, leading for the third consecutive month. This Division just barely held the lead and only because it finished first in the monthly standing. The Contest is so close that a little extra effort on the part of any other Division can change the standing in one month's time.

We have now been classifying accidents for a period of one year and a half. Through this work of classifying accidents into Chargeable and Non-Chargeable classes we were able to show that there were 5,441 trainmen who had clear records for the year of 1927. The classification of accident reports has created a great interest in Accident Prevention work and hardly a day passes without some trainman, who is interested in how his accident has been classified, getting in touch with this office through his superintendent when he thinks that his case has not been properly disposed of. Every trainman should be interested enough in his record to inquire of his Division Superintendent how his case has been classified. If he is not satisfied he should insist that the Division Superintendent again take up his case with the Superintendent of Transportation for review.

Accidents for the month of July show an increase over the same month last year. This increase has caused the total decrease of 4.78% for the first five months of this fiscal year to shrink to a decrease of only 3.14%. At the time this article is written our daily reports show that accidents in all classes are increasing, most of which are vehicle collisions.

Pulling away from the curb and right-angle collisions can be prevented if the motorman will sound his gong twice in every block or once every 300 feet.

When observing operation of street cars we notice that in many cases motormen are forgetting that they have a gong and only remember that they have one when they see a vehicle pulling toward the track. Just a tap on the gong will often prevent an accident. Every automobile parked at the curb is a potential

The pictures published in this number have been made with the definite thought that they would bring home to you how important we think the little things are.

hazard and the sounding of the gong will help to prevent accidents with automobiles pulling away from the curb, also right-angle collisions at intersecting streets.

We find that some motormen are permitting passengers to alight from the front step while the car is in motion, when the car is as much as a hundred feet from the proper stopping place. This practice is dangerous for two reasons: First, because the passenger may fall while alighting, and, secondly, because he may be struck by a passing automobile, which has a perfect right to pass if the car has not been brought to a full stop.

Motorman Should Be Standing When Within 100 Feet Approaching Any Street Railway, Intersection, Boulevard, Through Street or Railroad Grade Crossing

The picture showing the motorman in a standing position is the position which we say is correct when approaching a street car intersection, through street, or railroad grade crossing, or any congested place along the line, because when approaching such points drivers of automobiles following the car or running parallel with it often try to get ahead of the street car. We believe that the motorman is in a better position and more able to meet the emergency when the driver cuts in front of the car just barely missing the right corner. When standing at the points mentioned above the motorman sees the machine sooner and is ready to meet the emergency.

In the picture, which we say is correct, showing the motorman seated, please note the position of the left foot near the gong pin and note also that he is looking straight ahead, ready and alert to meet any emergency that may arise. When seated, using the broom or switch-iron as a foot-stool, the motorman is not apt to sound the gong twice in each block because of the additional effort required. When seated with his legs crossed and with his right arm resting on the controller handle he is just out of luck when suddenly cut off by another vehicle.

More Eyes Saved

The eye saving habit seems to be growing among the employes of the Surface Lines and it goes without saying that this doesn't make Mr. Pasche or anyone else mad. The two cases we are able to report this month are in the Track Department, P. Pastrone being the first lucky man. On August 6th, while he was working at Ogden and Washtenaw avenues, a flying fragment of concrete was intercepted by the protective glass, and although but a single fracture is shown in the lens, it is not difficult to imagine what a blow of that severity would have done to an eye.

A. Donile, while working on Fullerton west of Laramie on August 14th, had the glass in his lens shattered by a piece of concrete that struck the glass with terrific force. There is no doubt that the eye behind this glass would have been completely destroyed had it received the full force of the impact.

The wise man who values his eyes will wear his goggles when engaged on any hazardous work.

Elston Gets the Flag Again After a Year of Sharp Competition — Lincoln Improves

After practically a year's absence, the Pull-In Flag is now back at Elston. This carhouse, however, has been very near the top since last March, and heads the list this month with 63,143 miles operated per pull-in due to equipment failure, or an increase of 51.5% over last month. They also hold the record for zero days, which is twenty-five.

The greatest percent increase was made by Noble, being 63.5% over the preceding month, and this carhouse also moved from 16th place last month to 12th this month. Lincoln moved from 12th to 5th, and 77th from 6th to 3rd. If this latter carhouse keeps up their good work, the Flag will be flying in the South Division in the very near future.

The standing of each carhouse for the past half-year follows:

Carhouse	July	June	May	Apr.	Mar.	Feb.
Elston	1	4	3	2	3	7
Limits	2	1	1	3	2	6
77th Street	3	6	9	7	9	11

Lawndale	14	10	14	11	8	3
Burnside	15	14	16	16	15	16
Blue Island	16	11	11	14	11	1

The average miles operated per pull-in was 28,415, and seven carhouses show increases over last month.

During the past few months our average miles per pull-in has decreased, owing to the severe thunder showers. It is hoped that the month of August will raise the average so that it will be in line with May and the months previous.

The individual records follow:

A Clever Welding Job

How the Electrical Department Reclaimed a Badly Bent Trolley Pole

By E. M. MILEY

Recently a car entering the rear end of the Cicero and North Avenues Carstation on Track 1 in Bay 10 was derailed and hit a steel trolley pole bending it badly about four feet above the ground line. (Fig. 1.) The pole, it will be noted, is one of the main messenger poles holding up the trolley special work in the rear of the carstation. (Fig. 2.) It also carries a flood light, lamp, bracket and switchbox. (Fig. 3.)

The pole was bent so badly that Track 3 of Bay 9 could not be used for further operation. It then became a problem to renew the pole in the same location to keep it in line with the present poles and so as not to interfere with the overhang of the cars on the curves on either side. If the old pole was removed and a new pole installed, it would mean the removal of all of the wires, which would cause a slacking off of all of the trolley special work and fixtures. This would entail an expense of possibly $250.

The idea of cutting out the bent section and welding in a new piece of tubing seemed to be the logical way to do the job. The strain on the pole was in three directions, the main messenger running north and south and a span wire and pulloff wire to the west. In order to distribute the strain evenly all around the pole, a temporary strain guy was installed to the east. Then, of course, the strain was only downthrust.

First, one of our standard crossarm brackets was put around the pole so that the load when the bent section was cut out would rest on top of a temporary wooden pole, lashed to the steel pole. (Fig. 4.) The bent section was then cut out and a new piece of tubing, five feet long, was welded in place. The operations of this welding are shown in Fig. 4, 5 and 6. The bent section is shown alongside of the temporary wooden pole.

The sleeves used for this work are the same as the standard sleeves used in our pole reclamation work. The total cost of labor and material was $57.87.

Nervous Passenger (in aerial taxi about 5,000 feet up): "W-w-what are you l-laughing at, driver?"

Blue Island and Lawndale Top the Column—Slight Changes in the Race

Following is the standing of the sixteen depots at the end of three months—May, June and July, 1928:

16 Devon	44	26	10	7	87	22
Total	403	176	139	92	810	147

Compared with the same three months in 1927 an encouraging improvement in the number of chargeable complaints is shown in each class.

Following is the comparison:

	Disc.	P.U.	Trans.	Q.S.	Total	Cmnd.
May, June,
July, 1927	429	188	181	142	940	118
May, June,
July, 1928	403	176	139	92	810	147

The most gratifying improvement shown is that in "Quick Starting" where there were an even fifty less than in 1927. Too much importance cannot be placed on the necessity of being sure that no passengers are about to board or alight when the starting signal is given.

"Eternal Vigilance" could never be used to a better advantage than in this particular phase of operation. Chargeable "discourtesy" complaints were less by twenty-six in 1928 than in the corresponding three months in 1927.

Courtesy is an article or commodity which cannot be handed to a man along with his run number or transfers when he leaves the depot to start his day's work. In each man, no matter what is his position in life, there is originally a spark of courtesy and it remains with the individual how that spark is developed. Good nature invariably adds to its development and good nature should be the fundamental part in the makeup of all public utility employes, especially the street railway man with his constant contact with the public.

"Passing Up" complaints do not show a material decrease in the same three months, a decrease of six only, but still, a decrease. Passing up or running by a passenger without due cause is decidedly discourteous, more so when a crew pulling into depot, whizzes by such a person because the conductor has his trip sheet all made out and does not want to change it. Don't forget that conductors are paid for doing this and turning in their day's receipts after they reach the depot. Motormen are also paid for time taken up in signing in their cars.

"Transfer" complaints were decreased by forty-two for this period. It takes diplomacy, as well as courtesy, to call a passenger's attention to that that his or her transfer is void for some reason and then, do not forget, on a reasonable explanation on their part to also courteously accept the transfer. Conductors sometimes make mistakes in punching transfers, so give the passenger the benefit of the doubt.

Total complaints were bettered by 130.

Commendations were increased by 29.

And Blue Island still leads. Notice that Blue Island has had no "Quick Starting" complaints and but one "Passing Up" complaint.

Had a "Pull"

Casey—"Finnegan got his loife insured last June an' he's dead so quick."

Cassidy—"Shure, he must hav hed a pull wid de insurance company."

He: "They've some lovely mushrooms in this hotel. What d'you say we get some?"

She: "Don't bother. We can use the parlor when we get home."

Not Present

Visitor—"Is your father at home?"

Small Son—"No. Daddy has not been here since mother caught Santa Claus kissing the cook."

Beach Party a Success

High Winds and Heavy Surf Fail to Spoil the Pleasure of Merrymakers

On August 11th, although the weather was not the most ideal for a beach party, nevertheless there was a record-breaking turnout with 250 registering by 6:30 p. m. Our members and their friends were on the beach much earlier than in previous years, so the serving of those delicious Coney Island red hots with that special brand and make of coffee was in demand by 5:00 p. m., just one hour earlier than scheduled.

Working Up an Appetite for Supper

A Bunch of Good Appetites

There being no swimming on account of the dangerous undertow we had a real beach party on the sands of the Jackson Park beach; benches were provided for everybody in a circle around the serving table and after the first round of eats we were entertained by the "S. L. C. Hot Dog Quartet" led by G. Andrews, accompanied by our president, Nick Deutsch, the harmonica wizard. Fancy dancing on the "canvas" covered sands was also one of the features of the evening. After the marshmallow roast, watermelon was served. All who attended and spent a few hours on the beach with the Surface Lines' Club went home feeling that they had a most enjoyable time.

Husband—Jelly? We had jelly sandwiches.

V. W.—Jelly sandwiches! You'll pay dearly for this. Liar.

Husband—Jelly sandwiches. Honest. Have my stomach pumped.

V. W.—No more of this farce. Mr. Collins! (Enter detective.)

Detective—Yessum?

V. W.—Tell this gentleman what you saw at the road house, so he'll know why I'm divorcing him.

A. E. R. A. CONVENTION

The Surface Lines will be well represented at the Convention to be held by the American Electric Railway Association at Cleveland, Ohio, on September 22-28. All of the Surface Lines employees who attend the Convention undoubtedly will experience a thrill of pride and gratification when they find the Silver Car occupying a position of honor in the great hall. The fame of this beautiful trophy won by Lincoln last year in the Accident Prevention Contest has spread throughout the country and there is no doubt that thousands of visitors from other transportation properties will make it a point to inspect what is believed to be the finest trophy ever awarded in any contest on a traction system.

The Shops and Equipment Department will be particularly interested this year in the progress that has been made in two features having a special bearing on the comfort of the millions who patronize the electric trolley—reduction of noise and improved seating arrangements,—the latter relating both to the location and number of seats as well as to the material of which the seats are constructed.

The latest wrinkles in roadway construction, replacements and repairs undoubtedly will supply the Engineering Department with valuable hints which can be applied to advantage here.

There will be many papers on subjects of surpassing importance to the industry generally and of peculiar interest to engineers, accountants and executives who are responsible for policies and management.

The Convention invites the thoughtful study and consideration of everyone who has at heart the success and progress of the industry.

THE GARDEN CONTEST

With Noble, Devon and North Avenue proclaimed the leaders in the order named for the season of 1928, a survey of the situation gives rise to a number of interesting thoughts.

Generally speaking, the contest was entered upon with enthusiasm and the gradual transformation of the rather drab surroundings of the conventional car station into areas of beauty and attractiveness has been distinctly beneficial. These benefits applied not only to those whose business was identified with the car stations but to residents in the neighborhood and casual passers-by. It was a manifestation of self-respect and interest that reacted favorably in every direction. It displayed a desire to be a credit to the locality and there was a curiously interesting response in some cases where property owners in the neighborhood, who had shown little concern about the appearance of their own front yards and parking, suddenly realized that they too owed a duty to their neighbors; and flower beds and window boxes blossomed in the most unexpected places.

The men at the car stations where there were opportunities for garden development co-operated in improving the general appearance of their own stations and there is no doubt that a remote result of the garden contest was a greater care and pride in the personal appearance of the men at the various stations.

The contest will be continued next year and with the experience gained during the past season, results should be achieved that will far surpass accomplishments of 1928.

A good memory is a useful quality, but the power to forget is a quality that only a great man can possess.

A gentleman was being introduced to the game of golf. Friends perched the pellet on a mound of sand, handed him a driver and said: "Go ahead now, hit it." "Hit it where?" the beginner asked. They pointed. "At that flag," they told him, indicating a flag fluttering five hundred yards away. "Does it count the same whether the ball hits the flag or the pole?" the novice inquired seriously.

BACK FROM GREAT BRITAIN

Vice-President Richardson Returns After a Comprehensive Motor Trip

Our Vice-President and General Manager accompanied by Mrs. Richardson and several friends, recently participated in a brief but intensive study of Great Britain, their tour being chiefly by motor. They sailed from Boston on July 8 returning by way of Quebec and reaching Chicago on August 13. Mr. Richardson was much impressed by the character of the public improvements, the massiveness of the great docks and ship basins, the high type of English officials having to do with highways and public service, the remarkable thoroughness with which the country was cultivated and the general air of cleanliness and well-being observed in the rural as well as the metropolitan districts. They tried out all forms of transportation offered in London and everywhere found public servants polite and willing to be of assistance to the visitors.

On August 15, twenty-one Surface Lines executives and their assistants were present at an informal welcoming luncheon at the Union League Club, where Mr. Richardson was good enough to touch the high points of his trip most entertainingly. Incidentally he disclosed the fact that the Empress of Scotland, on which he made his return trip, inadvertently steamed through the Cowes regatta, on the day when King George's yacht, The Britannic, finished third. The passengers on the Empress of Scotland could have tossed a biscuit on the deck of the royal yacht, but probably avoided international complications by resisting the temptation.

THE MOTORMAN'S RESPONSIBILITY

He Should Know His Equipment and Use It Properly for the Car Riders' Comfort

We have today through the expenditure of vast sums of invested money for the purchase of the very best of everything needed, a street railway machine equipped to operate safely, comfortably and speedily for the benefit of our patrons.

With this as an accomplished fact it is not uncommon to learn from strangers and our own citizens that they have a grievance—and a serious one—growing out of two operating faults:

STARTING the car in such a manner as to throw, jerk and sway the passengers.

STOPPING the car in such a manner as to throw, jerk and sway the passengers.

Miss Youngstrom of the Auditing Department, Mr. and Mrs. Sigwalt and Henry Grendlehner of the Paymaster's Office on the Steamer Paducah En Route to Florence, Alabama

You will notice that with the exception of the first words these criticisms of car operations are exactly the same. These first two words apply to the most important part of the motorman's business, and it is not unreasonable for the public to demand that their comfort shall be fully considered by the men in control of the operating mechanism.

Having the highest type of equipment to work with it is distinctly up to the motorman to use it in such a manner as to insure the greatest possible degree of comfort to his passengers. Smooth starting and stopping is an evidence of skill and marks the man as one who knows his business.

When to this type of skilled operation the motorman adds judgment in coasting whenever and wherever possible, and runs on time, he justifies his employment, earns the appreciation of the public, and will get a lot of self-satisfaction out of it. And besides, the meter will tell an interesting story.

The following table has been arranged for the benefit of our motormen and shows the standing of each Depot on the basis of the greatest gain in Power Saving when compared with the first operation period of the Depot, the per cent column showing the amount, thus determining the rank of the Depot on this system:

CLUB SPARKS

Riverview Night

Surface Lines night at Riverview Park on Friday, August 10th was a well attended and happy affair. The increased attendance was remarked upon by park attaches who beamed with pleasure while looking over that "good-looking" crowd. It was a clear, cool night and they "shouted the chutes," slid "over the falls," cracked "the whip," bumped down "the 'bobs,'" "hey-deyed," geyed the bugs and themselves in the "bug-house," and jazzed and glided in the ball room. They knocked the live nigger-babies down and filled up on candy floss, weenies and lots of stuff that could not be analyzed. Grown ups never go to Riverview except to take the kids so there were a lot of temporary adoptions so dad and ma could get a few thrills. Riverview is the biggest of its kind, laid in a place of natural beauty and it sure does not hurt anybody to go back to the days of their youth for a few hours. Of course, everyone spent a few cents on the side but the return was worth it—even if everyone did not pick a winner and come home with a teddy bear or fancy doll or a basket of corn flakes and ketchup. Riverview Park says: "Come again. We'll give you another date this year if you will take it."

HER TAKING WAYS

She took my hand in sheltered nooks,
She took my candy and my books,
She took the lustrous wrap of fur,
She took those gloves I bought for her;
She took my words of love and care,
She took my flowers, rich and rare,
She took my ring with tender smile,
She took my time for quite a while,
She took my kisses, maid so shy—
She took, I must confess, my eye,
She took whatever I would buy,
And then she took the other guy!

Helpfulness, Courtesy and Honesty Recognized by Appreciative Patrons

When One of Our Cars Well Loaded Was About to Start on Signal From Supervisor Mahlon W. Bane of North Avenue, His Attention Was Attracted by a Slight Flutter Under the Car and Staying the Signal, He Investigated and Discovered a Two-year Old Child Under the Car in Such a Position That If It Had Started, Instant Death Would Have Followed. Supervisor Bane Is Pointing at the Spot

An interesting newspaper story a couple of weeks ago described the rather remarkable recognition of a passing motorist as the assailant of a lady and his capture and identification. But the newspaper story omitted the credit that should have gone to two of our men, Conductor Charles J. Weiland and Motorman Larson of Burnside for making the capture. In a report to Division Superintendent Altemeier Conductor Weiland gave the high points in what was quite a thrilling chase:

On August 27, about 1:30 a. m., Motorman Arthur C. Larson and myself were going home in my machine. We had just reached 93rd Street and Stony Island Avenue when a man came up, stopped my car and said: "Will you do me a favor? A colored man attacked my wife Friday night and he laid in wait for her tonight and he just went down Stony Island Avenue." I then told him and his wife to get into my car, and we started down Stony Island Avenue. When we arrived at 79th Street and Stony the lady recognized him and pointed him out to us in a touring car without any lights.

He looked around and when he saw her he ran through the lights south on South Chicago Avenue to Jeffrey Avenue, north on Jeffrey Avenue to Jackson Park. We then picked up a coast guard at Jackson Park for the chase. He then went down an alley and we followed right behind him, then turned west on 55th Street to Harper Avenue. We could see no policeman, so we thought we had better stop him. When he got to 51st Street and Harper Avenue, the traffic being heavy, he coasted along to make it. I then got in front of him and ordered him to stop. We all got out, so that he was unable to run. We asked why he was taking all the alleys and why the speed. He said he thought it was a friend of his and he was going to fool him. The wagon from Hyde Park came and picked him up. At the station he denied ever having seen the lady, but she said: "Look at his hand and you'll find where I bit him when he covered my mouth." Sure enough there were the marks of teeth and he was booked for assault.

A rather unusual case brought Conductor P. J. Gill, Badge No. 9938, of the Eleventh Division, into prominence. On August 26th, Mrs. Mary Krueger of Kansas arrived in Chicago following the receipt of a message that her only son lay at the point of death in the Masonic Hospital. She knew nothing of the city—an utter stranger. She had been directed to take a Ravenswood-Rosehill car and when she boarded the car in charge of Conductor Gill and told him where she wanted to go, he personally saw to her transfer, and, as the conductor of the car to which she transferred was not familiar with the location of the Masonic Hospital, Conductor Gill gave him the needed information and requested that he be particular in seeing that she was allowed to alight at her destination. His sympathetic interest was most reassuring and consoling and she later on wrote to express her appreciation of his assistance in enabling her to reach the hospital before her son passed away. She had the consolation of being recognized by and talking with her son, and, as an expression of gratitude, she enclosed in her letter a modest monetary souvenir which she hoped he would use advantageously during the Labor Day period!

Accounting

Every Monday morning brings forth another batch of sunburned faces. It has become quite easy to discern those who have had their vacations and those who have not. If a person has that "Ouch, my back" look on his countenance, then you know that he has been away for two weeks, spent two months' salary, slept on hardpan mattresses, was vigorously attacked by hordes of mosquitoes and generally had a miserable time, and will spend at least three weeks trying to recuperate.

Mr. Walter F. Lange has fully recovered from his recent illness and is back on the job feeling better than ever.

Miss Mildred Hedstrom was hostess at a dinner at the cottage of Mrs. Hedstrom at Williams Bay, Wisconsin. The guests included Misses O. Wagner, R. Kleefeld, H. Olson, E. Swanson, E. Schlau, A. Around the Car Stations

Cottage Grove

Let us make a special effort during the next four months to win the Accident Prevention prize. It can be done. Let us all pull together and win it. It is worth trying for.

Our Assistant Superintendent, Mr. C. Crick, has returned from his vacation. With Mrs. Crick and a party of 10 friends they left Chicago in automobiles for a distance of 450 miles to Winchester, Wis. They were fortunate in being able to rent three cottages close together on the banks of Turtle Lake where they found some very good fishing. They also fished in other lakes in the vicinity of their cottages, Beaver Lake and Rainbow Lake. But their most exciting experience was when visiting the Indian reservation and to fish at Lake De Flambeau. On their journey which was by boat through connecting rivers, they left civilization behind and had to break through beaver dams in order to reach their destination and it was here that Mr. Crick and his fishermen friends started to compete for a valuable prize which was offered to the one catching the largest fish. Some fair size pickerel and bass were caught, but when Mr. Crick pulled out a ten pound baby muskie the prize was awarded to him. Both Mr. and Mrs. Crick came back much benefited by their vacation and with a splendid tan of sunburn.

GOING AFTER WITNESSES

Elston-Noble Takes the Lead Away from North Avenue—Seven Stations Better Than Four

North Avenue and Elston-Noble seem to be playing a little game of "In-again-out-again" in their struggle for the lead in the witness getting contest. North, which was second in April and May, passed Elston-Noble and ran first in June, only to be pushed back into second place in July, when Elston-Noble again went to the front. The general slump which was noted in the June records, when only five of the stations scored four or better, disappeared in July when seven registered four or more. The figures were not quite as high as in June, however, and the average for the system showed a fractional decline.

The Diversey bus contingent took a brace and improved their record by scoring 3.43 against 1.37 for June.

Here are the records for the system for the four months:

A Smile or Two from Everywhere

The little man was perfectly harmless, but the lady sitting next to him in the car was a spinster, and suspicious of all males. So, since they were somewhat crowded on the seat, she pushed the umbrella between her knee and his and held it firmly as a barrier. A shower came up, and the woman when she left the car picked up the umbrella. As she did so she perceived that the little man followed her. She had guessed that he was a masher, now she knew it. She walked quickly down the side street, and the man pursued through the driving rain. She ran up the steps of her home and rang the bell. When she heard the servant coming to the door, feeling herself safe at last, she faced about and addressed her pursuer angrily:

"How dare you follow me! How dare you! What do you want anyhow?"

The drenched little man at the foot of the steps spoke pleadingly:

"If you please, ma'am I want my umbrella."
—Thomas Topics.

Two men left a banquet together; they had dined exceptionally well.

"When you get home," said one, "if you don't want to disturb your family, undress at the foot of the stairs, fold your clothes neatly, and creep up to your room."

They met the next day at lunch.

"How did you get on?" asked the adviser.

"Rottenly," replied the other; "I took off all my clothes at the foot of the stairs, as you told me, and folded them neatly. I didn't make a sound. But when I reached the top of the stairs—it was the elevated station!"

Mrs. Nodimes: "Is your husband tight, like mine?"

Mrs. Nickelless: "Is he? Say, every time he takes a penny out of his pocket the Indian blinks at the light."

She came into a police station with a photograph in her hand—

"My husband has disappeared," said she. "This is his photo." And she handed Exhibit A to the inspector.

"I want him found at once?" she added.

The inspector looked up from the photograph.

"Why?" he asked.

"Was your old man in comfortable circumstances when he died, Mrs. Murphy?"

"No, Mrs. Flannagan, he was half-way under a train."

Liza, the negro cook, answered the telephone one morning, and a cheerful voice inquired, "What number is this?"

Liza was in no mood for trifling questions, and said with some asperity, "You all ought to know. You done called it."

The Shell or the Kernel?

Mrs. De Style (as dress mannequins display gowns at modiste's)—"Which do you like best, Richard?"

Husband—"I prefer that tall brunette—er—that is, I mean the pink chiffon, my dear."

Mrs. Nut (handing her husband a saucerful of white powder): "John, taste that and tell me what you think it is."

Mr. Nut: "It tastes like soda."

Mrs. Nut: "That's what I told Bridget. She declares it is rat poison."

Judge: "Are you positive the prisoner was drunk?"

Officer: "Well, your honor, I saw him put a penny in a patrol box and then he looked up at the City Hall clock and roared: 'Gawd, I've lost fourteen pounds.'"

What to Forget

If you would increase your happiness and prolong your life, forget your neighbor's faults. Forget all the slander you have ever heard. Forget the temptations. Forget the fault-finding, and give a little thought to the cause which provoked it. Forget the peculiarities of your friends, and only remember the good points which made you fond of them. Forget all the personal quarrels or histories you may have heard by accident and which, if repeated, would seem a thousand times worse than they are. Blot out as far as possible all the disagreeables of life; they will come, but will only grow larger when you remember them, and the constant thought of the acts of meanness, or, worse still, malice, will only tend to make you more familiar with them. Obliterate everything disagreeable from yesterday, start out with a clean sheet today, and write upon it for sweet memory's sake only those things which are lovely and lovable.—Claremont Herald.
