Three Receive Suggestion Award Cash

MOST RECENT winners of cash awards announced by the Employe Suggestion System are the three men shown in the center of this picture between T. B. O'Connor, general superintendent of transportation and equipment maintenance, and W. J. McCarter, general manager. The men are, left to right: Gerald Christensen, Electrical Department, Louis Weissgerber, Construction and Maintenance Department, and Harold Kram, Electrical Department.

CASH AWARDS to three employes and the addition of a new incentive prize to spur employe interest were announced recently by F. C. Knautz, executive secretary of the Employe Suggestion System.

The cash awards went to Gerald Christensen and Harold Kram, Electrical Department, who collected $87.50 each, and to Louis Weissgerber, carpenter, Construction and Maintenance Department, whose winning suggestion brought him $50.00.

Christensen, an apprentice electrician, and Kram, an armature winder, teamed up on an idea for an improved procedure to be used in the repair of rotary converters in substations. Weissgerber's award was based on a suggested change in an auxiliary part of the equipment used in circular wire brushes for scrubbing subway floors.

Added to the merit awards which are available to employes who send in acceptable suggestions which merit investigation is a Zippo lighter engraved with the CTA emblem.

The committee rules on the practical value of accepted suggestions after due consideration and determines the amount to be awarded based on the estimated first-year savings from use of the proposed new method or technique.

C-O-L Allowance Cut 1¢ Per Hour

A DECREASE of one cent per hour in the cost-of-living allowance for approximately 13,000 CTA operating and clerical employes became effective with the first payroll periods in September.

For the three months ending August 31, the cost-of-living allowance was six cents per hour. For the three months beginning September 1 and ending November 30, the allowance will be five cents per hour added to the basic wage rates which, for one-man operators, is presently $2.70 per hour.

As a result of the decrease in the cost-of-living allowance CTA payroll costs for the next quarter will be reduced approximately $26,000 per month.

The cost-of-living allowance for CTA employes is adjusted quarterly. An adjustment, either up or down, but not below the present base rates, is determined by the per cent of change in the cost-of-living index for Chicago compared with the index for October, 1959.

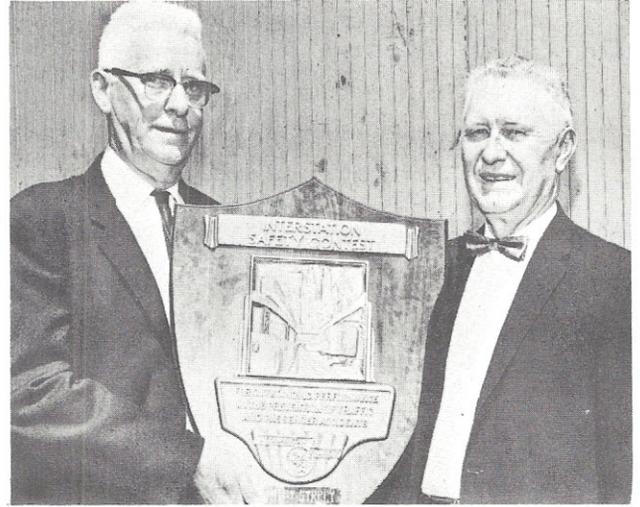

The per cent of change, if any, is then applied to the basic wage rate of one-man operators to establish the amount per hour to be paid as a cost-of-living allowance.

OUR COVER: Internationally recognized as a focal point of culture and education is the area centering around Chicago's famous Midway, considered one of the most beautiful academic avenues in the world. Along the mile-long Midway Plaisance are located the Gothic-style structures which identify the campus of the University of Chicago and its various schools, hospitals, experimental laboratories and other facilities which make up the University complex. In the center of the picture is the Rockefeller Memorial Chapel and at the top right is Stagg Field. The modern buildings set amongst the older structures testify to the growth of this great institution of learning in recent years. CTA's 59th-61st route operates to within a short walking distance of the campus area.

ISC Winners Receive Award Plaques

TOP RECOGNITION in the Interstation Safety Contest was accorded the two stations winning awards for the second quarter of the year when General Manager Walter J. McCarter presented plaques to the superintendents of 61st and Keeler stations on July 31 and August 2 respectively. Mr. McCarter appears in the picture at the left with E.C. Loughran, superintendent, Keeler, and at the right with the late Lester J. Hickey, superintendent, 61st street. This was the last honor paid to Mr. Hickey whose untimely demise occurred on August 7.

STUDENT CARDS DISTRIBUTED IN SCHOOLS

SCHOOL DAYS are here again for thousands of students in the Chicago area and with the start of classes for the fall semester limited student identification cards, entitling the bearer to ride to and from school at a special rate of 12¢ per trip without transfer, or 17¢ with transfer, were made available to elementary and high school students by CTA.

Initial distribution in the school was made September 7 and continued through September 14 by CTA representatives who collected $1.00 for each card issued to eligible students. Applicants were required to sign the student identification card and have it countersigned by the school principal or teacher before it became valid on CTA vehicles.

The limited card can be used only between the hours of 6:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. in traveling to and from school on school days only. The card is valid only if the student is traveling toward school shown on the face of the card in the morning and away from school in the afternoon. In the afternoon the student must board the bus in the immediate vicinity of the school or at the nearest rapid transit station. A replacement fee of $2.00 is charged for a limited card that has been lost, stolen, defaced or destroyed.

Students who were absent on the day cards were sold at the school can secure a card by bringing the proper forms, available at the school, together with the $1.00 fee, to the Merchandise Mart on any Saturday morning beginning with September 8 and through November 3. CTA representatives will be in the lobby of the Mart from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. to accept applications for student identification cards. The cards, after processing, are forwarded to the respective schools for issuance to the student.

Students eligible for cards must be between the ages of 12 and 20, inclusive, and must be a full-time day student at an accredited public, parochial or private elementary or high school. The card must be shown at the time the fare is paid.

CTA anticipates an estimated sale of over 100,000 student identification cards during the first semester of the 1962-63 school year.

Dr. S. D. Mosny

Named

Medical Director

Chicago, he was employed in October, 1941, as examining physician and surgeon with the Medical Department of the former Chicago Rapid Transit Company. He also had his own private practice until 1950, when he became a full time employe of CTA's Medical Department.

He was in military service from 1943 to 1946 as a captain with the Army Medical Corps assigned to an Army general hospital unit in England. In 1960 he became assistant medical director of CTA.

Dr. Mosny is a member of the Chicago Medical Society, the Illinois Medical Society, the American Medical Association, and the Industrial Medical Association.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF the appointment of Dr. Stephen D. Mosny as CTA Medical Director effective September 1 was made recently by General Manager Walter J. McCarter.

Dr. Mosny takes the place of Dr. George H. Irwin, who retired September 1 as active head of the department. Dr. Irwin, however, will still serve in an advisory capacity as medical consultant to the department.

Dr. Mosny is a graduate of the University of Illinois College of Medicine, from which he was graduated in June, 1940. After serving his internship at Grant Hospital,

Dr. Irwin, who has headed the CTA Medical Department since October, 1953, began his long connection with the transit industry with the Medical Department of the former Chicago Rapid Transit Company in 1922. He still maintains his own private practice at offices on the north side. He has been on the staff of St. Francis hospital, Evanston, since 1926, and served as president of medical staff of the hospital during 1955-56. Dr. Irwin's affiliations include the American Association of Railway Surgeons, the Chicago Medical Society, American Medical Association, and the American College of Surgeons.

Four Receive New Appointments

NEW APPOINTMENTS and assignments affecting supervisory personnel on the rapid transit system were announced recently and went into effect on August 12.

Appointments included J. R. Blaa, named station superintendent for the Lake and Logan branches; M. J. O'Connor, named assistant station superintendent, south section, and Thomas Boyle, named relief station superintendent, North-South section.

The assignment of W. J. Gillies as station superintendent for the south section also was announced.

The bulletin announcing the realignment of responsibilities was signed by D. M. Flynn, superintendent of transportation, and approved by T. B. O'Connor, general superintendent of transportation and shops and equipment, and General Manager W. J. McCarter.

TWO GENERAL office employes who completed long service records with transit companies were honored by their co-workers on the eve of their retirements on September 1. They were (left): Vera B. Crider, secretary, Comptroller's Department, who is shown being congratulated by John H. Finch, assistant comptroller, and right, David R. Watson, attorney, who is being extended best wishes by W. S. Allen, counsel, Law Department. Mrs. Crider had 38 years of service with the former Chicago Rapid Transit Company and CTA, and Mr. Watson, 34 years with the former Chicago Surface Lines and CTA.

Crusade of Mercy Asks YOUR Help

KEEPING YOUNGSTERS healthy is a big job, and the Infant Welfare Service gives full time to this important service.

LONELY OLD people, often without family or friends, find recreation, companionship, understanding at Crusade of Mercy senior centers.

CHICAGO'S LARGEST charitable drive will open officially October 1 when more than 50,000 volunteers launch the 1962 Crusade of Mercy.

A goal of $16,115,000 has been set for the campaign, which helps support 142 local health and welfare agencies of the Community Fund plus Chicago's share of Red Cross Funds.

CTA's annual solicitation of employee contributions to the 1962 campaign will get underway on October 1. In his letter to employees, General Manager Walter J. McCarter urged greater participation in this year's drive for funds. Payroll deduction cards will be distributed to all employees not presently enrolled in the payroll deduction plan, and those now participating will be urged to increase their amounts.

Among the services to be financed by the Crusade are family welfare and care of the aged, child care and day nurseries, a vast range of health services including clinics and nursing care, rehabilitation programs for the physically handicapped, youth and neighborhood services and community welfare planning.

In addition, the Red Cross provides its traditional disaster services, aid to veterans and servicemen and their families, and first aid and life-saving training programs.

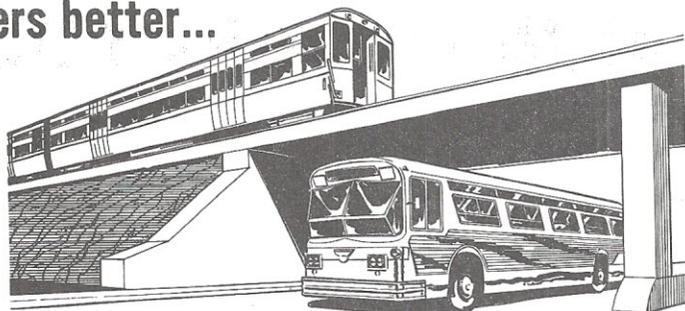

CRUSADE OF MERCY child care services offer food and shelter to thousands of little victims of broken homes.

THIS TINY victim gets a ride home from the Red Cross motor service driver after treatment at a Disaster first-aid station.

KNOW YOUR CTA ROUTES

OPERATING THROUGH a populous south side residential area, the 59th-61st (No. 59) bus route provides service directly to the North-South rapid transit route from both east and west of State street.

Buses are routed east from the Keating terminal via 59th, State, 61st and Blackstone to a loop via Midway, Stony Island and 60th. Returning, buses turn off the eastbound route for a few blocks and operate down 61st, Indiana and 60th to State Along their route, buses pass through residential West Lawn, West Elsdon, Chicago Lawn, Gage Park and Englewood communities, which are characterized by the many small stores and shops along 59th street. To the east of State street an entirely different atmosphere exists as several of Chicago's parks adorn the scene.

Covering over 16 million square feet, Washington park lies in the area bounded by 60th, South Park, 51st and Cottage Grove. Extending east from the park, Chicago's beautiful Midway plaisance reaches a mile to Jackson park. The wide median of the Midway, between the drives, was depressed years ago with the hope of extending a canal inland to the Washington park lagoon. However, engineering problems forced abandonment of the plan.

Historic Jackson park contains Chicago's spacious Museum of Science and Industry, an edifice built 70 years ago to house art exhibits at the Columbian Exposition. In 1924, the work of rebuilding and adding to the original structure commenced--using the Munich, Germany, industrial museum as a model. Opened in 1933, the museum was originally named after its founder, Julius Rosenwald.

Once the site of the World's Fair, the 500-acre Jackson Park had its own "L" system. The two and one-half mile loop-shaped Intramural railroad operated through the Fair grounds in 1893, and was Chicago's first electrically powered elevated railway

On weekdays, schedules call for buses every six to seven minutes during rush hours and every 10 minutes during midday and evening hours. "Owl" service operates at 30-minute intervals from 2 a.m. to 5 a.m., west to Pulaski only.

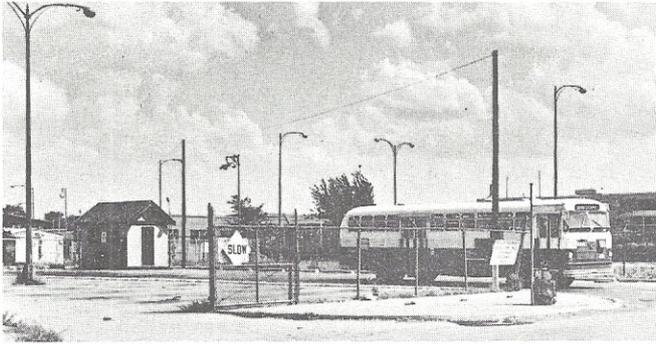

Buses operate on 10-minute headways Saturday, except during the evening when 12-minute intervals are maintained.

Sunday schedules call for buses every 15 minutes in the morning and every 10 minutes throughout the remainder of the day.

Operating from the 60th street station, 16 buses are assigned to the route. The measured round trip mileage between outer terminals is 16.70 miles and the one-way running time varies from 37 to 46 minutes depending on the prevailing traffic and the time of day

THE POPULATION boom on Chicago's southwest side in recent years was greatly due to the construction of modern residences in formerly undeveloped areas. Shown here are some of the homes along 59th street, at Kedvale ave.

ONE OF the more than 100 off-street bus terminals operated by the CTA is on the 59th-61st route. Located at 59th and Keating, adjacent to Midway airport, this terminal is the destination and origin of 147 bus trips on each weekday.

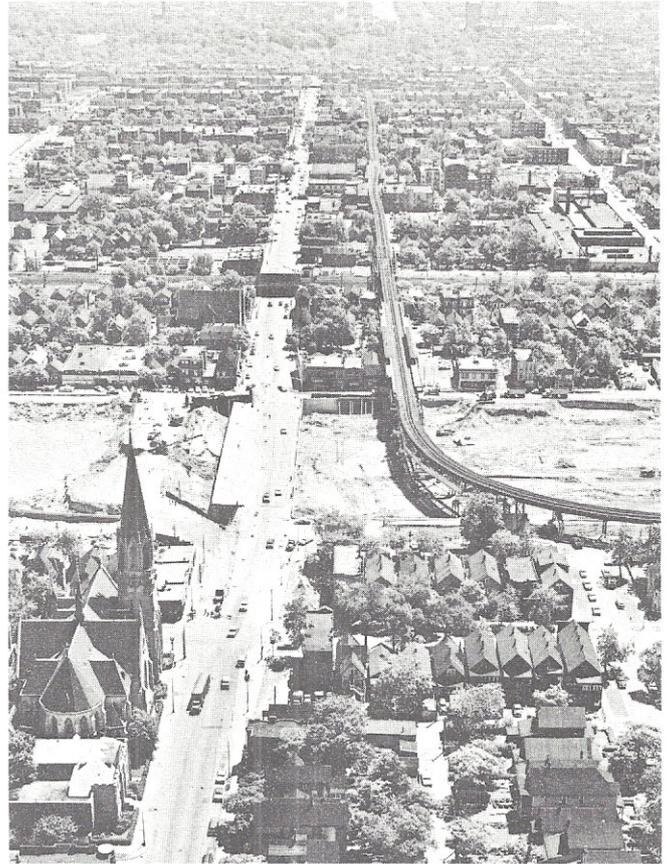

Transit service on 61st street started in 1885, when a horsecar began operating between Wentworth and Vernon avenues. Two years later the line was extended east to Cottage Grove.

In 1893, big things were in the wind for the 59th-61st route, as it was to serve the Fair. On April 20, the route was adapted for streetcar operation and extended further east over 61st and Blackstone to 60th. Special cars also operated down 61st, Cottage Grove and 63rd to the Fair entrance.

The growing need for transportation forced the extension of a horsecar line down 59th street, from State to Leavitt, in 1896. Within a few months the line was electrified and linked with the 61st route via State.

The streetcar route was later extended to Kedzie in 1914 and Central Park in 1924.

In March, 1947, an extension bus began operating from Central Park to Keating over 59th street. On February 16, 1948, buses were substituted for streetcars and four months later the two bus routes were consolidated.

LANDMARKS WHICH can clearly tell of a communities development and future, although visible at ground level, tell a much greater story when seen as a group from the air. In this scene, looking east on 59th street from Normal avenue, the multi-story frame residences and brick apartment buildings depict the early growth of the locale. St. Martin's church, in the lower left corner, has served the spiritual needs of the area since 1895 at Princeton and 59th. The structure of the Englewood elevated branch entered the picture in 1905, and is now being altered where it crosses the wide expanse of the South Expressway, which is destined for completion soon. Also in the future, is the installation of a rapid transit line in the median of the expressway, when funds become available to CTA.

Recovers Tuition Money Lost on "L"

TO LOSE one's purse can be an upsetting incident under any circumstances, but when the purse contains money saved to pay a college tuition fee it can be a worrisome situation indeed.

This was the predicament confronting a Wheaton (Illinois) College student who left her purse with $185.00 cash and other valuables on a Howard street "L" recently. But it all turned out happily when the purse was retrieved intact through the efforts of the trainman and lost and found personnel at Howard station.

The trainman was Daniel Jemison, Badge No. 21722, who recovered the purse and turned it in at the end of his run. The student was contacted and within a matter of hours had the purse in her possession, contents undisturbed.

Reporting the incident in a letter to CTA, she praised the persistent, diligent efforts of the employees concerned and in a special comment for trainman Jemison said: "He is obviously a man of excellent character and profound honesty. I want to congratulate you for having an employe of such high integrity."

Picture-Taking Time for Pensioners

SMILING AND waving, this group of CTA pensioners lined up at Kedzie station to certify their identification before having individual pictures taken for new riding cards.

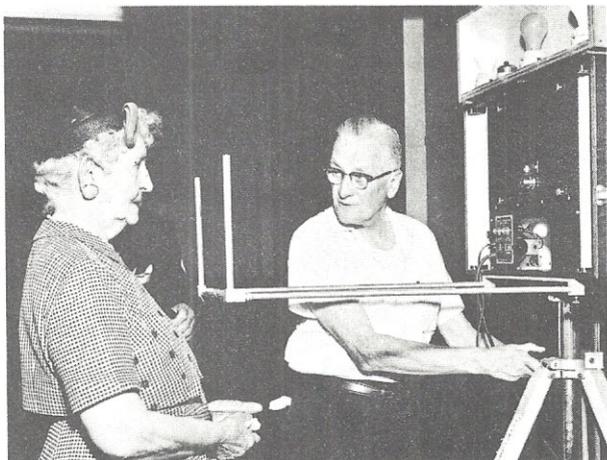

ONE THING is certain. CTA pensioners are not camera-shy - at least not when they are called in to have their pictures taken for the renewal of their riding passes.

This happens once every three years and since the last time they were asked to appear was in 1959, they came in to certify their identification for their annual cards.

Though some pensioners have taken up residence in other sections of the country, many in sunny Florida, 3,500 of them still living in the Chicago area came in to be "mugged" for the "ID" cards which entitle them to free transportation on CTA vehicles, the same privilege they enjoyed when they were active employees.

AMONG THE ladies who appeared was Rose Daniels, former West Section station agent, who retired on June 1, 1951. The photographer is Doane Clark, of CTA's Stenographic-Duplicating Department.

Most of the 3,500 pictures were taken at Kedzie station, where CTA photographers set up their cameras during the week of August 6-10. As can be imagined, it was a week of reunion for many who had worked together for many years and had not seen each other since the last riding pass picture-taking session.

As of June 31, this year, there were 5,514 pensioners drawing monthly retirement checks from CTA.

The accompanying photos show a few of the pensioners signing in and posing before the camera as they applied for the new riding passes which will be valid after January 1, 1963.

Exhibit Accents New Look in City Transit

HIGHLIGHT OF Chicago's 125th birthday anniversary celebration on the weekend of August 24-26 was the Exposition of Progress held at Navy Pier which featured exhibits depicting the city's past, present and future.

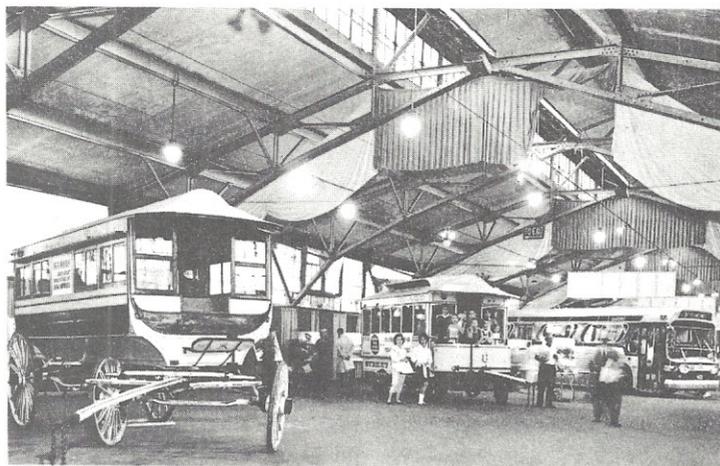

CTA, which participated with public agencies and city departments, was represented by a display of transit vehicles dating back to the horsecar days and one of its "new look" buses now in service on city routes. The exhibit commanded a lot of attention among the thousands of visitors who attended the Exposition.

TO GET behind the wheel of a "new look" bus seemed to be the ambition of many youngsters who came to see the big show. On hand to tell them about the operating principles which every driver must know was Instructor Raymond Pryor, who explains the braking mechanism to this young fellow.

OFTEN SEEN in civic parades, the 1859 horsecar was a big attraction at the exhibition. These eager youngsters, accustomed to modern transit vehicles, found it an interesting relic of their great grandfathers' days. CTA Board Chairman V. E. Gunlock, also obliged the cameraman by posing with the group.

Freedom Bond Certificate Awarded CTA

Chicago Transit Authority
Merchandise Mart
Chicago, Illinois

for service to the Nation through the promotion of "Bonds of Freedom"—
U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

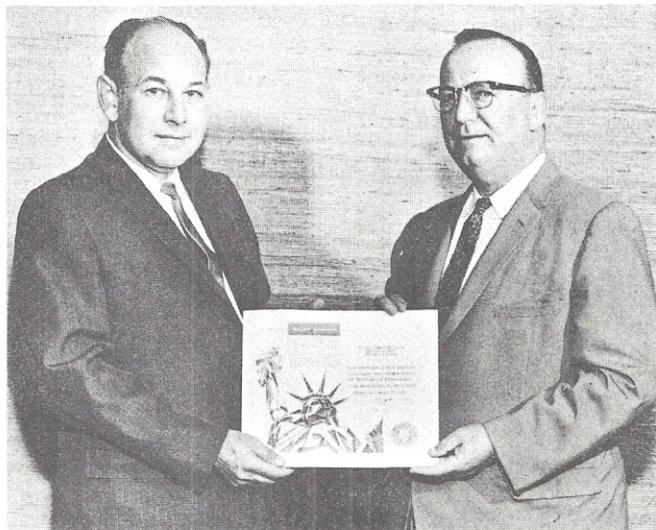

Presented August 22, 1962

Joseph Vomachka
SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY

Douglas P. Kelley
CHAIRMAN

CTA was awarded a United States Treasury Department Freedom Bond certificate recently for its cooperation in promoting the sale of United States Saving Bonds among its employees. The certificate was presented to CTA Board Chairman V.E. Gunlock (right) by Joseph Vomachka, area representative for the Treasury Department, shown here with Mr. Gunlock. As of May 31, this year, over 7,300 employees were participating in the plan for the purchase of bonds through the payroll savings plan by which regular deductions are made from earnings. The bonds thus accumulated provide a safe and solid investment for the future.

ONE-CENT INVESTMENT PAYS BIG DIVIDEND

A ONE-CENT investment in the honesty of a CTA rider brought a 10,000 per cent dividend to Operator Chester Krajewski, badge No. 9015, Archer, recently.

Krajewski received the reward for helping the rider, who boarded the bus with a $10.00 bill and only 24 cents in coins on his person. The operator couldn't change the bill when the rider offered it in payment for his fare, so Krajewski took his 24 cents and told him he would add the extra penny from his own pocket. The grateful rider expressed his appreciation and told Operator Krajewski he would repay him for his consideration. The driver promptly forgot about the whole matter.

The following day, however, a case of books valued at $100.00 arrived at his home. There were books for every member of his family, including a handyman's do-it-yourself guide for the operator.

The sender, an executive of a large printing concern, accompanied his gift with the following letter: "As I told you yesterday afternoon, I am sending some books that will please your two boys and you and your wife. Thanks for being a gracious gentleman to a man with 24 cents."

Test New North Avenue Rush Hour Service

A NEW weekday rush hour bus service along North avenue between Harlem avenue and Austin boulevard and along Austin boulevard between North avenue and the Austin boulevard station of the Lake rapid transit route went into effect September 10 for a trial period of six months.

The new bus route replaces the service which had been operating in North avenue between Harlem and the Damen station of the Milwaukee rapid transit branch.

The bus service along North avenue and Austin boulevard provides a shorter ride for persons of the North-Harlem area who wish to make "L" connections to and from the Loop. The new routing along North avenue and Austin boulevard to the Austin boulevard station on the Lake route covers a distance of three miles. The length of the previous route from Harlem-North to the Damen station of the Milwaukee rapid transit branch was six and one-half miles.

Mondays through Fridays, six inbound trips will leave Harlem and North avenue between 7:00 a.m. and 7:55 a.m. and seven outbound trips will leave the Austin boulevard rapid transit station at Lake street between 5:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m.

The new service from Harlem and North is operating as part of the existing Austin boulevard extension of the Washington (No. 131) rush hour service.

EMPLOYEE ON-THE-JOB conduct often determines public reaction to our service. Good or bad, it is reflected in the letters of commendation or complaint written by our customers.

The difference between a happy, satisfied customer and a disgruntled one usually simply comes down to the attitude of an employe towards his job or his general attitude towards the public he serves.

When passengers are treated pleasantly they will usually respond in a like manner. A friendly atmosphere is contagious. It should be remembered that when a patron pays his fare he is not only entitled to a ride, but also to the courteous treatment due him.

The following letter is an example of how an operator with a pleasant disposition and ability to get along with people can win friends for himself and, by the same token, for CTA service:

"This letter is written on behalf of the 56 children and adult members of the party to tell you how pleased we were with the driver you assigned for the chartered bus for a tour of the 'Little Red School House.' His name was Fred Badke (Badge No. 4362, Archer). Mr. Badke should be commended for the fine and courteous service he rendered. He was most polite and obliging and an extremely safe and careful driver. Our boys especially appreciated Mr. Badke for he served as an unbiased and fair umpire for their league game. Our school is planning many more trips and we will be chartering more buses. Knowing that men of Operator Badke's caliber are driving is most reassuring."

In contrast to the foregoing letter is this complaint about an operator's conduct which antagonized, rather than pleased, a group of riders. The operator's attitude is not in keeping with the rules and regulations for personal service advocated by CTA:

"Recently, one of our newly-formed high school groups was returning from North Avenue beach and attempting to board a Route 36 bus at the corner of North and Clark. There were 15 in the party and, when about seven of us had boarded the bus, the driver closed the door, leaving the remainder of our party, as well as several other prospective passengers, waiting at the curb. Apparently one of our girls had unintentionally dropped a nickel in the fare box and the operator launched into an unmannerly dress-down of the girl's stupidity. By this time I was quite insistent in my demand that he let the others on, or let the rest of us off. Although all of us had paid our fares, two of us did not get transfers and had to pay a second fare when boarding the next bus. Incidentally, we had to walk one block back to North Avenue to rejoin our group. Though some drivers are very pleasant and go out of their way to actually provide good service, others offset the good impression by closing the door and driving away with a partially-filled bus.

COMMENT: As a service organization, we expect our employes to make the use of CTA service as convenient and attractive as possible. The conduct attributed to the operator reflects most unfavorably upon his training, CTA, and his fellow employes.

SHOWN HERE is a comparison of complaints and commendations recently received by Chicago Transit Authority for August, 1962, July, 1962, and August, 1961:

MEDICALLY SPEAKING

By Dr. George H. Irwin
CTA Medical Consultant

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE CTA EYE SURVEY PROGRAM

THE MOST recent CTA Eye Survey study has just been completed. It was started on February 1, 1961, and finished on August 17, 1962. Albert Glueckert, who was especially trained for this job, did the examinations under the supervision of the CTA Medical Department.

The eye survey is only one of the methods frequently used to check the eyesight of CTA employes. In the pre-employment examination a careful evaluation of vision is routine. Good vision is a strict requirement for acceptance. Then, of course, the employe who has been on the sick list or injured on or off duty is subjected to a careful vision check before being approved for work. Thus, repeated eye examinations are one of our chief medical services.

The purpose of the eye survey is primarily the maintenance of good vision in all CTA employes. It is felt that employes with good vision will have longer service with the CTA. Also, it is of importance to the general health and safety record of every employe. Sometimes the finding of defective vision leads to the discovery of some systemic disease, such as diabetes, high blood pressure, cataracts and other maladies.

If a vision defect is found, the employe is advised to contact his family doctor or his regular oculist. Furthermore, a subsequent visit to our Medical Department is made after the employe has consulted his eye doctor. This is done to determine the end result.

A few general facts about the eye survey may be of interest to our readers. The examinations were done on a regular schedule at the various stations, shops and general offices for the convenience and minimal time loss of each employe.

A total of 6,825 employes were included in this survey. Of this number it was noted that 417 had some impairment of vision. However, it was most gratifying to find that the vision in this group could be corrected or improved so that each employe could continue on his job with no impairment of safety or efficiency. The eye survey is helpful to those persons who thought their vision was perfect but on examination showed a visual defect in one eye. In such cases it was apparent that the individual was depending on his good eye, but was unaware of the deficiency in the other eye. The correction gave the employe two good eyes instead of one.

It is well to remember that good eyesight is one of the most precious bodily gifts we possess. Practically all of our actions and knowledge are dependant upon or come to us through our eyes. Normally, our daily work, happiness and good health are possible only when our eyes function properly.

CTAer Named to IRT Committee

APPOINTMENT OF George Krambles, superintendent of planning and operations, CTA Transportation Department, to a special nationwide committee of the Institute for Rapid Transit for developing new fare collection devices and methods for rapid transit systems was announced recently by Walter J. McCarter, CTA general manager and president of the Institute.

Krambles will serve with three other transit experts on a major research project to devise the most modern means for collecting fares and clearing passengers through rapid transit stations with the utmost in convenience and efficiency.

Other members of the committee, which is a sub-committee of the Institute's research and development committee, include George Ihnat, research and planning director of the Cleveland Transit System; Keneth Hoover, chief engineer of the San Francisco Bay Area Transit District, and J. H. Kearns, assistant general manager of operations of the Toronto transit Commission.

Among the desired improvement are newly designed turnstiles, the development of new automatic machines for accepting transfers and tokens, the installation of bill and money changers, the development of machines for handling point-to-point or zone tickets, and the installation of such special equipment as closed television circuits for keeping a constant watch on unmanned subway and other rapid transit stations.

The program for improving fare collection is in addition to plans announced recently by the Institute for Rapid Transit for a major research and development project in a major city of the United States to bring about a space-age concept of two-rail rapid transit, along with modernized track and structure and station facilities.
